Carbon Steel is preferred for heavy usage because it is thicker (0.20mm) and a little stronger, but the blades generally rust quickly, so they are really only good for one day's use.

Stainless Steel blades are far more resistant to rust and more flexible (0.15mm), but are not quite as sharp. If you only scrape occasionally, the stainless steel is the way to go. We now offer in both packs of 10 (Green) and packs of 25 (Black) blades.

We now carry a thicker (0.20mm) stainless steel blade which is both stronger and more resistant to chipping, available in a Red pack of 25 blades.

Bleached vs Unbleached

We order sea sponges by the thousands and, when possible, we order unbleached sponges. Most diving companies bleach their sponges lighter for the retail market because they look "prettier." This process weakens and shortens the life of sea sponges.

WaterFed®

High Rise

Rope

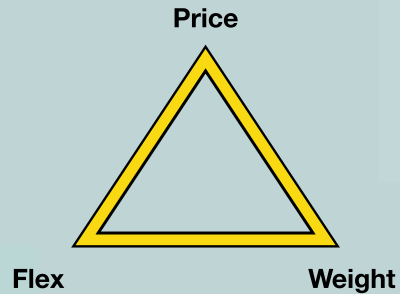

WHAT IS WATERFED®?

Scrub, Rinse, That's It!

Clean Faster, Easier, and Safer with a WaterFed® system. It purifies your water like a spot-free car wash. That means that once you rinse, the water will dry spot free with no need to squeegee it off.

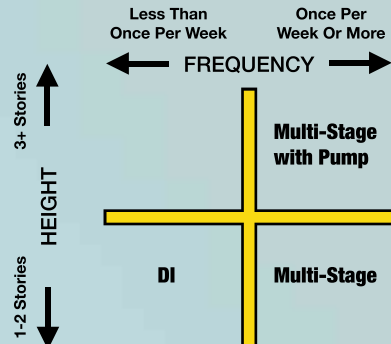

Now you can safely clean up to 6 stories without leaving the ground!

Choose A Pole

All poles are a compromise between Price, Flex, and Weight. The higher you clean, the stiffer and lighter you'll want your pole. This means using materials like Carbon Fiber, which have higher upfront cost, but are easier to use and less fatiguing.

Choose A System

How high will you be cleaning, and how frequently will you use your system? DI systems have low upfront cost, but high per gallon cost. If you will be using the system regularly, multi-stage systems will quickly pay for the high upfront cost. If you are cleaning higher than 2 to 3 stories or you want to run 2 or more poles at once, you'll want a system with a pump.

How Would You Clean A 6 Story Building?

LIFT

$100-$500 a day. Requires safety equipment. Access may be limited.

LADDER

Limited to 2 or 3 stories. Carries inherent danger of working at height. Access may be limited.

ROPE WORK

Requires specialized training and equipment.

WATERFED®

Safely clean up to six stories without leaving the ground. Scrub the glass, rinse, and move on to the next window. Up to 10x faster than ladders.

SHOULD YOU PURCHASE A DI OR MULTI-STAGE SYSTEM?

How high will you be cleaning and how frequently will you use your system? DI systems have low upfront cost, but high per gallon cost. If you will be using the system regularly, multi-stage systems will quickly pay for the high upfront cost. If you are cleaning higher than 2 to 3 stories or you want to run 2 or more poles at once, you'll want a system with a pump.

SMC XL Offset D

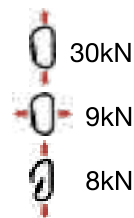

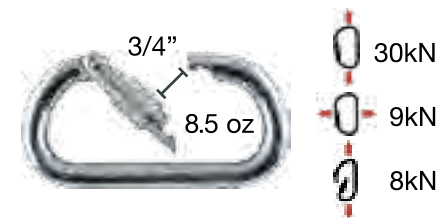

Galvanized Steel // Screw Gate // Pin & Notch
 Certifications: NFPA G
 SM20003N // 41.85 12+ 35.57

Features a stainless steel gate and locking sleeve for greater strength and reliability. Sleeve locks on the gate rather than the body of the carabiner, which eliminates problems of the knob binding on the frame after the carabiner has been loaded. The zinc-plated finish on the frame resists corrosion and rust even when scratched. All components of this carabiner are meticulously hand-finished after machining, contributing to the smooth, free gate action that is the hallmark of all SMC carabiners.

This carabiner features a twist lock: it remains locked until the gate is twisted, after which it can be opened normally.

Certifications

Society for Professional Rope Access Technicians (SPRAT): Safe Practices for Rope Access Work recommends carabiners have a minimum strength of 22kN (5,000 lbs).

In the absence of more applicable rope access standards, ANSI Z359.1 is a standard related to fall protection that OSHA often uses. If you are not using ANSI Z359.1 compliant carabiners, be prepared to justify that choice to OSHA inspectors.

Petzl Self Braking I'D

One of the simplest descenders on the market. If you load your rope incorrectly, the device locks up preventing use. If you panic and pull the lever too hard, the device locks up, stopping descent. The Petzl I'D is unmatched in ease of use and simplicity of set-up. Carabiner, rope, and chair sold separately.

RACKS

Pros: Easily add or remove friction. Won't twist rope. Easy to replace bars.
Cons: Large and heavy. Not self-braking or anti-panic.

CYLINDERS

Pros: Easy to use.
Cons: Bulky. Not versatile. Most are not self-braking or anti-panic.

FIGURE 8

Pros: Lightweight and simple.
Cons: Not self-braking or anti-panic.

SELF BRAKING

Pros: Easy to use. Most are anti-panic and comply with ANSI Z359.
Cons: None.

Self Braking: When you let go of device, it stops.

Anti-Panic: If you pull too hard, device stops.

ANSI Z359 requires a self braking anti-panic descent device. If you aren't using one, be prepared to justify that choice to OSHA inspectors.

ALL ABOUT HARNESSES

Attachment Points

Front: Commonly used for attaching fall arrest during high rise cleaning. Allows for easier self-rescue.

Back: Commonly used for attaching fall arrest during high rise cleaning or other work at height (e.g. lifts).

Side: Used in specialty applications for positioning.

Ventral (waist): Commonly used for attachment to main line, especially in rope access where a chair isn't in use.

Note that some harnesses also have shoulder attachments. These are used for confined space applications and do not normally apply to high rise cleaning.

Choosing A Harness

Application: Consider what you will be using your harness for. If you are working on a roof or in a lift, you can get away with a simple fall protection harness (back D only). For high rise window cleaning and rope access, you'll want to get a comfortable harness with multiple attachment points.

Comfort: Spending a long time in the air can be uncomfortable, especially with a cheap harness. Nicer harnesses have more padding, making them more comfortable. If you spend much time in the air, you won't regret spending the money.

Ease of Donning: A harness made of webbing can be confusing to put on. It's difficult to tell which side is up, where your arms go, etc. Harnesses with more structure are easier to put on and adjust.

ALL ABOUT ROPE GRABS

Regular

Locking mechanism can be defeated by user. User can hold onto device so that it fails to engage during fall.

Anti-Panic

Locking mechanism engages even if user panics and grabs device. Device can't be defeated by user when used properly.

Tended

vs.

Trailing

vs.

Self Parking

Tended devices must be manually moved up and down rope by user. Trailing devices follow user up and down rope without being tended. Self Parking devices move up the rope automatically, but must be manually moved down the rope.

Certifications

ANSI establishes standards for rope grabs in industrial settings. Make sure your rope grabs are marked Z359.1 to meet the Fall Protection Code. Rope Grabs should come with a lanyard, or have a max lanyard length specified in the user instructions, and should always be used with rated, life-safety connectors.

ALL ABOUT LANYARDS

Lanyard Length

If you are using your lanyard with a rope grab, read the manufacturer's instructions. They should specify a maximum lanyard length and/or maximum fall distance.

Maximum Fall Distance

If you push your lanyard down below you, you can fall twice the length of the lanyard. So, with a 3' lanyard you could potentially fall 6'. We recommend keeping your anchor as high as possible to minimize fall distance. Read the instructions on your lanyard. They should specify a maximum fall distance.

Shock Pack

Shock Pack

Dynamic Rope

Webbing

Some lanyards have shock packs that deploy to absorb shock in case of a fall. If using with a rope grab, make sure that the lanyard is compatible. Some rope grabs call for webbing or dynamic rope lanyards with no shock pack.

Certifications

ANSI Z359.1 is a standard related to fall protection that many lanyards conform to. Many companies don't use ANSI rated lanyards for a variety of reasons. If you choose not to use ANSI rated lanyards, be prepared to justify that choice to OSHA inspectors.

The polyester cover is very flexible, absorbs less water, has lower stretch, and is more abrasion-resistant than the nylon covers found on some static ropes. The polyester cover and nylon core are balanced during manufacturing to attain the ultimate in performance.

KMIII static rope is a balanced construction consisting of a continuous filament polyester cover braided over an unidirectional nylon core. KMIII is designed to meet the rigorous requirements associated with rescue and rappelling operations. KMIII is dual certified (CE & NFPA).
